

Fair Housing Enforcement Program

November 2017

Volume 4, Issue 9

Aloha from FHEP

November 3, 2017 - The Fair Housing Enforcement Program (FHEP), the Hawaii Civil Rights Commission (HCRC), and the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) recently joined forces to provide training and education to housing providers on the island of O'ahu. The training allows landlords, property managers, and other real estate professionals a chance to learn about the Fair Housing Act, their responsibilities as housing providers, and provides an opportunity get unique training for fair housing trends in our state.

Our warmest mahalo to this year's participants! If you are interested in receiving training on fair housing laws from the FHEP, email info@fairhousinghawaii.org.

About Us

The Fair Housing Enforcement Program (FHEP) is a project of the Legal Aid Society of Hawaii. Our mission is to promote fair housing and end housing discrimination through education, advocacy, outreach, and litigation. All people in Hawaii have the right to make housing choices without regard to race, color, religion, national origin, sex, disability, familial status, age, gender identity or expression, sexual orientation, marital status, or HIV infection.

If you believe you have been denied access to housing because of discrimination, you may call the FHEP Hotline at 808-527-8024 or from the Neighbor Islands, 866-527-3247. Leave a message and our Intake Specialist will call to

Fair Housing is our kuleana, our right and responsibility. Have you ever felt discriminated against by a housing provider based on your national origin, your familial status, your sex, etc? Share your story with us! #FairHousingIsOurKuleana

Fair Housing: Our Kuleana

HUD plans on reducing the Fair Market Rent (FMR) rate in 2018 and in response to this cost-cut, which would impact the amount of money voucher recipients would receive to subsidize their rents each month, state officials are sending out surveys to collect data on how much tenants are paying for rent on Oahu and the Big Island.

"Voucher holders already have a difficult time finding safe, decent and affordable rentals within the range of HUD fair market rents," said Neil Gyotoku, Hawaii Island housing administrator, in a statement. "Decreasing fair market rents will worsen the situation, especially in high rent areas such as West Hawaii."

The housing administrator urged anyone who receives the rent-surveys to respond, saying it will ultimately benefit local residents and hopefully will encourage the federal government to increase the islands' FMR.

Training for Interested Volunteers

Wanna Add Investigative Work to Your Resume?

Earlier this year, the FHEP's testing program filed a complaint against a local property management company , alleging disability-based discrimination in rental housing on the island of O'ahu. After a series of systemic tests on the company, our testing evidence showed that prospective tenants with emotional support animals were given differential treatment on the basis of disability and ultimately not given an opportunity to rent. This case was a big success for our program and for the volunteer, who walked

- QUICK REVIEW - Service Animals and Assistance Animals for People with Disabilities in Housing and HUD-Funded Programs

One of the most common issues that arise in Fair Housing law are accommodation requests for people who want permission to live with an assistance animal in no-pets housing.

Because the use of assistance animals is on the rise nationwide as a way to help patients cope with the symptoms of many different types of disabling psychiatric conditions, it is always helpful for housing providers to refresh themselves on what a tenant's/home owner's responsibilities are when it comes to these types of requests, and what their obligations are under the Fair Housing Act.

There are several different resources that provide accurate information on state and federal Fair Housing laws:

HCRC: Assistance Animals as a Reasonable Accommodation

FHEP Fact Sheet: Assistance Animals Q&A

If you are a person with an emotional support, comfort, companion, or service animal, or if you are a housing provider for someone with such an animal, it is in the best interest of your business to know the law!

If you have questions about assistance animals or a fair housing complaint, the FHEP will respond to inquiries submitted to:

Inspiring Fair Housing News

Racial Harassment in a College Dormitory

In recent months, we have included information in our news on the topic of neighbor-on-neighbor harassment and how it applies to the Fair Housing Act. In a racially motivated attack, a student who lived in on-campus housing at the University of Hartford, allegedly poisoned and harassed a fellow student and dorm-mate, of whom is African American, in order to intimidate her into moving out of the housing. In addition to criminal charges and fair housing violations, the alleged attacker will also be face a hate crime charge.

Anti-Family Ads

"Not suitable for children/pets."

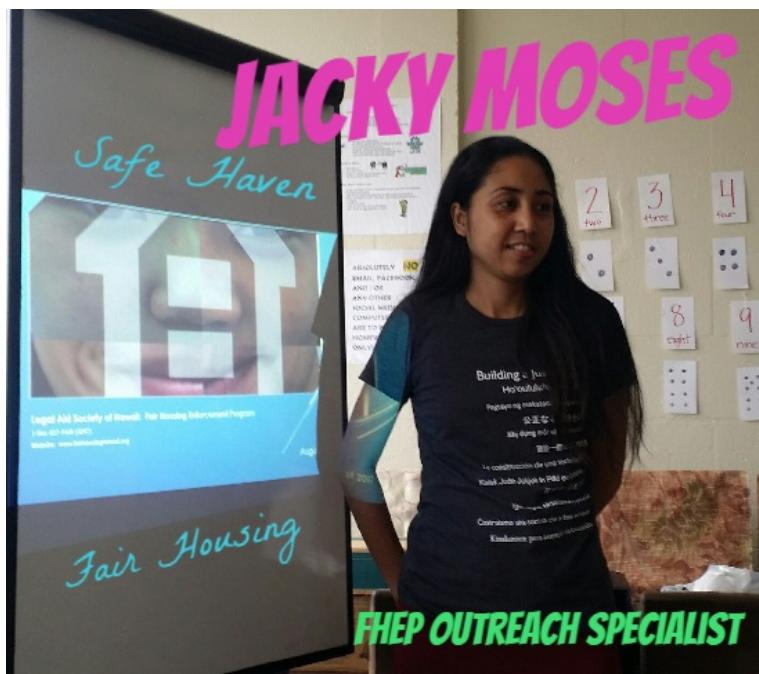

Exemptions to the Fair Housing Act (FHA) are irrelevant when it comes to advertising the sale or rental of a home. This rule is not confined to any type of advertisement of the home and includes all in-person communication with the prospective housing consumer as well. In Pennsylvania, HUD has charged Atlanta Properties with violating the FHA based on familial status after finding evidence of the company's posting of housing ads online with the restriction mentioned above. The case was initiated through the Fair Housing Partnership of Greater Pittsburgh who runs a housing discrimination testing program similar to the FHEP's.

Haunted Homes

The scariest of haunted houses aren't ones that scare you with monsters and ghosts. The worst of fears are based on reality and that is what Andrea Jablonski is exploring in her immersive theatre performance, "A Memory Palace of Fear". Instead of facing off with Frankenstein, theatre goers will get to experience real life situations of housing segregation, inequality, and other nightmare scenarios.
